

News Worth Sharing: Memorial Day Weekend Happenings

There is so much happening in Kent this weekend!

Shops, restaurants and galleries are in full swing, plus there are a number of special events taking place.

We hope to see you around town!

Stay well,

Jean

The Kent Farmer's market is back! Their new location at the Kent Land Trust Field opposite the Kent Greenhouse is THE quintessential location for this popular market - tons of parking, easy access, and plenty of places to sit and enjoy the incredible views as the sun sets over Mt. Algo.

The offerings are endless:
certified organic produce | farm-raised eggs
| homemade salsa, granola, soup and baked goods
| farm-raised meats and poultry | charming embroidered goods | jams, jellies and maple syrup.

Visit the Kent Chamber of Commerce website for more information.

Memorial Day Parade: Steps off from Kent Center School at 9:30 am on Monday. Join the town in honoring those killed in action, and veterans in our community who have given so much to ensure our freedom.

Bring your lawn chair and a cold drink (weather is forecast in the upper 80's) and find your spot on North Main Street in the village to watch the procession led by American Legion Post 153 Honor Guard, WWII Veteran Bob Bauer and Korean War Veteran Francois DiGregorio, followed by the Kent Center School Band, Kent Scouts, Kent Volunteer Fire Department, and a tractor-driven wagon for kids, driven by Bill McAnn. Weather permitting, there will be a C-130 Military Flyover by the 103rd Airlift Wing of the Connecticut National Guard.

Be sure to stop by the lawn at the Kent Community House (at the Congregational Church) for an ice cream treat served up by the Kent Lions Club!

But be sure to leave room for lunch...
